

I am graduating with a Bachelors of Business Administration in Accounting and through my involvement with the Insurance Society, in addition to the courses I have completed; I have decided that instead of pursuing a career in public accounting, I want to pursue one in the insurance industry. I am very interested in finding a position that would allow my accounting skills to be most efficiently used; however, I am not limited to only an accounting role. I am a hard worker and will complete whatever task is laid before me. That extends to whatever position I may need to fill. Regardless of the position, whether it is in the underwriting or analysis area or some other area, I will give the same amount of effort as I would in an accounting role. Additionally, I will be a great asset and a successful investment for any employer who grants me the opportunity to show that I can be everything that I have made claim to.

I have several years of full time work experience in the environmental industry that is not on my resume, because there was not adequate room to list my entire history without forcing my resume to become too lengthy. I was dedicated to each of those employers before I decided that I needed to return to college and seek a career in a different industry. My return to school was not an easy one, but was a successful one and I am ready to uphold the reputation I gained for my dedication so many years ago. I will be wearing a different kind of uniform to work, but nonetheless I know that it will demand the same amount of hard work, only in a different fashion, as did the ones I wore in my previous employments.

Please consider giving me the chance to prove that I can deliver on who I say I am and what I can provide for your organization.
